

Selling Ammunition to a Customer with a FOID (or CCL) That Has No Printed Expiration Date

Beginning January 1, 2022, there will be in circulation and possessed by the public:

- FOID Cards with and without expiration dates printed on the face;
- CCLs with expiration dates printed on the face; and
- Combined FOID and CCLs without expiration dates printed on the face.

(a) "A Firearm Owner's Identification Card, issued by the Department of State Police at such places as the Director of the Department shall specify, shall contain the applicant's name, residence, date of birth, sex, physical description, recent photograph, except as provided in subsection (c-5), and signature. Each Firearm Owner's Identification Card must have the Firearm Owner's Identification Card number ~~expiration date~~ boldly and conspicuously displayed on the face of the card."

A customer comes to you and wishes to purchase ammunition. Up until now, you asked for their FOID, they presented it (or their CCL), you checked the printed expiration date, and if it appeared on its face to be valid, you made the sale. Easy enough. This process will change in the coming days and months.

Because of the many opportunities being instituted to renew a FOID without any required interaction between the cardholder and the Firearms Services Bureau (FSB), beginning January 1, 2022, we will no longer be printing expiration dates on FOIDs or CCLs. If you encounter a card like this, simply go to the Applicant portal and click, "Firearms Transfers" Or type in <https://verify.ispfsb.com> into your browser address bar.

Enter the card number and date of birth of the person (buyer/transferee) to whom you will be transferring the ammunition and click, "Submit."

PRIVATE FIREARM OR AMMUNITION TRANSFER RESPONSE

This system is for the sole purpose of determining the validity of a FOID card in compliance with the Firearm Owners Identification Card Act ("FOID Act"), 430 ILCS 65/1 et seq. for private firearm and ammunition transfers. This system shall not be used by a Federal Firearm License Dealer ("FFL") in place of the Illinois Firearm Transfer Inquiry Program. However, the system may be used by an FFL to determine whether a purchaser has a valid FOID card when selling ammunition.

TO DETERMINE THE VALIDITY OF A FOID CARD FOR A TRANSFER AND TO RECEIVE A TRANSFER APPROVAL NUMBER, please enter the FOID card number and date of birth of the person (buyer/transferee) to whom you will be transferring the firearm or ammunition. Approved transfers will be issued an approval number. Records for approved firearm transfers must be retained for a period of 10 years.

THIS IS NOT A BACKGROUND CHECK! This is nothing more than a check to see if the FOID is still valid. If the card is valid, you will receive a transaction approval number. Make the sale. If you are told the card is not valid, you will not be told why.

You do not have to follow this procedure for a card with a printed expiration date that appears to be valid. There is no requirement by the Act for the retention of records related to the validity of the FOID card for the transfer of ammunition.
